ANKAKEE WE ARE TOO BUSY

To write advertisements. The papers, we know, will suffer from the loss of our literary contributions; they will be missed by the readers. But as long as the wise and good people make such a rush on us we shall be obliged to postpone our literary labors and attend to the wants of those who are looking to us for railway tickets, sleeping-car, parlor-car and chair-car accommodations in our palace trains. To California! To Oregon! To Colorado! (Do you know Colorado is becoming about as popular in winter as in summer?) To Florida! Yes, sir, to Florida. Notwithstanding the yellow fever, many are prepar-ing for their winter flight to its sunny clime. The Asheville, N. C., region, with its high altitude and mild elimate, is attracting great attention from rafugees from winter. Our trains reach this winter paradise in twenty hours. Then there is always popular Old Point Comfort and the thousand attractions on the Chesapeake &

Ohio railway. Our popular lines to Washington, D. C., Baltimore and Philadelphia still lead all competitors. In fact, it is a very out-of-the-way place, in-deed, East, West, North or South, that the Kankakee and its connections is not the best route to reach it. Snow-Storm in the East. Boston, Nov. 25 .- A flerce northeasterly gale is blowing, and snow fell, to-day, changing to sleet this evening. About six inches of snow has fallen in eastern Massachusetts, and is drifting badly. Shipping in the harbor has suffered considerably. Wires are down in all directions. A gale and heavy snow are report ed at Brattleboro, Vt., and in New Hampshire. The storm at Salem, Mass, is the worst for years. The sloop-yacht Narragansett and an unknown schooner are ashore near Forest river. New York, Nov. 25 .- The first snow storm of the coming winter, which has been raging in this city and along the seaboard of the New England and Middles States, to-day, has been of blizzard vigor. As night came on, sleet and hall followed the snow, and the ice particles, like sharpened points, rendered street-pedestrianism impossible without suffering. Even in the harbor and lower bay ships dragged their anchors under the force of the fierce tempest, one ship having nearly collided with the favor-plagued ship Boston, while drifting out to sea. She and others that have been torn from anchorage were towed to safety by tugs. A pilot boat was unable to hold to anchorage and sought a pier. Off Staten island, near Sailor's Snug Harbor, a canal boat, leaded with coal, was sunk, and a brick-laden schooner went to pieces, her crew escaping. In this city the meroury stands at 28° at midnight.

	THE ANARCHISTS.

The Chicago Clubs Being Revived Under th Guise of Working-People's Societies.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 .- Under the guise of working-people's associations, the Socialists are endeavoring to effect new organizations, which shall include the branches now partially disintegrated of the various groups. embracing Anarchists, Communists and such other societies as have for their object the overthrow of existing governments and social systems. A meeting for the purpose of forming one of these societies was held in this city this afternoon on West Lake street. The hall was packed with men and women, the larger part of whom are Anarchists. The proceedings were in German, and a new organization was formed and christened the "Arbeiter Bund." All persons, regardless of sex or religious belief. are eligible to membership upon the payment of 10 cents. The objects of the society are to organize the commonest or lowest class of the people and to educate them to such an extent that they shall be able to reach the perfection of social liberty as outlined by anarchy.

LONDON, Nov. 25 .- Mrs. Lucy Parsons, addressing a meeting of the Socialistic Club, tonight, attributed the strictures made upon the speaker's dynamite-bomb doctrines by Mrs. Bosant solely to political motives on the part of the latter. Mrs. Besant, Mrs. Parsons alleged, was a candidate for a position on the school board, and bidding for Liberal support; therefore, she dared not speak her mind freely.

A FREAK OF NATURE.

A Curious Calf with Two Necks, Two Heads, Four Eyes and Four Ears.

Special to the Indianapolis Journet VINCENNES, Ind., Nov. 25.-At Tunnell Hill. Ill., there is a wonderful freak of nature. D. F. Beauman, proprietor of the Maple Grove stock farm, and one of the largest stock-breeders in southern Illinois, has a full-blooded shorthorn cow that dropped a two-headed bull calf yesterday. The heads are perfectly developed, and are on two separate necks. The lusus naturæ has four ears, four eyes, two mouths and two tongues. The heads are well developed in all respects, and it is curious to see them move as if by separate impulses. This double-headed freak of nature is sound in body and perfectly It is such a great curiosity that the people from all the surrounding country have flocked there to see it. It has been reported that its heads and necks are so perfectly adjusted that it can lick both sides of its body at once. The wonderful calf with two heads is the subject of much talk and curious speculation.

The Eight-Hour Agitation. Sr. Louis, Nov. 25 .- Information was received from Chicago yesterday that a new eighthour movement has been begun among workingmen of socialistic tendencies, and that a convention of the American Federation of Labor was to be held in St. Louis on Dec. 11 next. It is said that the purpose of the convention will be to consider the advisability of organizing a mammoth strike, to go into effect in June, 1890, by which to gain a settlement of the eight-hour question. Mr. J. Zinc, secretary of the Journeymen Tailors' union of St. Louis. was seen and questioned regarding the movement. Mr. Zinc said: "I have received a circular from Chicago relating to the convention of the Federation of Labor, but there was nothing in it of a special character, nor anything about the eight-hour movement, or a contemplated strike. If anything had been sent to our union of such a nature, it would have come to me. We know nothing of it."

Condition of William Means. CINCINNATI, Nov. 25 .- District Attorney Burnet has returned from a visit to Washington for consultation with Attorney-general Garland, concerning the indictment against Wm. Me :ns. former president of the Metropolitan National Bank. He carried with him a statement that Mr. Means's friends had paid his indebtedness to the bank, and also a petition with many names attached, for mercy. The Attorney-general placed the whole matter in Mr. Burnet's discretion. He visited Mr. Means in a retired hamlet on the New England shore, and represents him as a hopeless physical wreck, scarcely able to recognize his friends, and wholly unable to appear and make any defense. It is almost certain that upon Mr. Burnet's showing to the court the indictment will be nollied.

Big Demand on a Railway Company. WILKSBARRE, Pa., Nov 25 .- Relatives of the Scranton victims of the Mud Run disaster, and the relatives of the Pleasant Valley victims held a conference to-day, at Pleasant Valley, and decided to demand from the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company a sum much greater than that offered by the company for death losses. It is said that the ultimatum of the railroad company was made yesterday, when their agent offered $4,000 in the cases of adult dead. This was refused. A further conference will be held this week, and it will then be decided whether to go to law or not. Farmer Murdered.

Sr. CLOUD, Minn., Nov. 25 .- Frank Eich, a well-to-do farmer living near Royalton, was murdered yesterday afternood. He had been trading in Royalton and started to his farm with an unknown man, who had been with him all day. His body was found in the bushes near the road with a bullet in the brain, and his money and team gone.

BOULANGER'S FRIENDS.

The French Patriotic League Holds a Mildly Noisy but Harmless Meeting.

Paris, Nov. 25.-M. Deroulede made a speech at a meeting of the Patriotic League to-day. He spoke in terms of warm praise of General Boulanger. Referring to the recent accident to the Russian imperial train, he expressed sympathy with the Czar and rejoiced over his escape from harm. The speech was greatly applauded, especially references to General Boulanger.

The meeting was held in Le Mardelay's restaurant. Access to outsiders was barred by police, who prevented a proposed public reception. The guests, on arriving, were merely greeted with shouts of "Vive Boulanger," and "A bas Flouquet." A few arrests were made, but the proceedings were in the main orderly. At the conclusion of the banquet, which followed the meeting, General Boulanger made a speech, in which he said: "I am more a patriot than a soldier. I ardently desire peace-not peace which is demanded, but peace imposed by a firm and dignified attitude. That is the only peace acceptable to French hearts." He inverghed against a policy which divided the forces of the country, causing a misleading appearance of weakness-misleading because the least appeal to the country would cause all internal dissensions to vanish like a bad dream. He strongly denounced M. Ferry for wasting the country's resources in Tonquin while cognizant of the perils which threatened France. In concluding, he appealed for energy on the part of the League of Patriots, the solidarity of which was founded upon honor, dignity and love for France.

The departure of the guests passed off more quietly than did their arrival.

THE GERMAN RULER.

Criticism of His Speech Before the Reichstag -The Ancient War Scare.

London Special to Pittsburg Dispatch. The speech of the young German Emperor, the event of the week on the continent, is interesting as showing the supreme egotism of the young man whom chance has made master of the greatest army of the world. All Europe is discussing the utterances of the young Kaiser and theorizing as to their exact meaning. His longing for peace was expressed in a tone indicating his readiness to whip the whole of creation if necessary to get it, and his substitute of the pronoun I, although in place of the customary we, was significant. His idea of the relative importance of things in this world was illustrated pretty clearly in the wording of his phrase, "I and my allies and friends, with God's help," etc. Those who on general principles are inclined to doubt the sincerity of the conceited young ruler's peaceful utterances attribute these latter to the imperfect condition of the Italian army. Bismarck does not mean that the German forces shall be used up in the beginning of a war, and has perhaps impressed upon his young ruler the advisability of at least delaying things until Italy, which is evidently to be a cat's-paw, shall get into such military condition as to make it a useful cat's-paw.

The life of young William II. must remind even himself of that of a theatrical super, now a Roman citizen, and again a Spanish grandee. We read of the Emperor appearing in a simple uniform at drill in the morning. Then at noon in full general's regalia, to attend the swearing in of recruits, and then, an hour later, dressed as a Swedish ad miral, dining with a deputation of Swedish naval officers.

Correspondents and wiseacres generally continue to preach the war scare and to call at tention to the feverish arming and fighting preparations that are going on everywhere. But as these preparations have never for one instant ceased for years back there is no special reason to worry about them now. The Russian loan of 500,000,000 francs will be raised with a rush in Paris. The bankers who have charge of it declare it will be subscribed several times over, simply because the idea has gone abroad that in lending to Russia France spites Germany, which declined to take up a loan. This is a useful way of exploiting national antipathy.

HENRY M. STANLEY.

The White Pasha of Bahr-el-Ghazel Is Thought to Be the Famous Traveler.

London, Nov. 24.—An attache of the British Foreign Office said this afternoon that the government had just received information which left very little doubt that the White Pasha in the Bahr-el-Ghazel was none other than Henry M. Stanley, the explorer, and that Emin Pasha was with him. When the Stanley expedition proceeded up the Aruwimi in June, 1887, Stanley hoped to join Emin Pasha at Wadelai, in August. The next direct news from the expedition was dated July 12, 1887, and it was to Having found the Aruwimi turning southward, the courageous explorer had resisted the temptation to settle at once and for all the problem of its source and had started apparently in a northeasterly direction. In other words, Stanley was making, as nearly as possible, a bee-line toward the original destination of the expedition. News up to April last has been received from Emin, and as Stanley had not then joined him, anxiety for his safety seemed to be justified, especially when this fact was taken in conjunction with the previous reports of disaster. But it seemed probable that if disaster had overtaken the expedition it would have occurred during the two or three months immediately following Stanley's departure from the Aruwimi. Deprived of supplies from his base, and in an absolutely unknown country, the critical period for the expedition undoubtedly appeared to be the months of August and September, 1887, for it was during those months that all Stanley's calculations failed. The news recently received show, however, that Stanley was alive and well, and pressing forward as late as the end of November last, and it fully accounted for the delay which had occurred. Halting for the reinforcements which never arrived, and delayed by fever, which was no new experience with Stanley, and with which he well knew how to deal, the expedition had, nevertheless, succeeded in overcoming all difficulties and in pressing directly forward towards Wadelai for a period of nearly five months. The rest of the information confirmed the vague rumors which reached Emin in March of this year, and strengthened the surmises which African explorers based

According to these reports Stanley, finding progress in the direction of the Albert Nyanza impracticable, had at last abandoned the attempt and started "in an unknown direction." It was then pointed out that the new direction taken could only be northward towards the Wellemakua and the country of the Zandehs. Then sgain news was received that the rear guard of the expedition was actually met marching due north. Stanley having definitely decided to take that course in order to avoid the swamps to the eastward. This northward march was undoubtedly continued to the Wellemakua without finding an opportunity of again turning east, as the way was barred by a mountainous region forming the water-shed of the northeastern Congo and the Nile systems, and this fully accounts for the explorer's non-arrival at Wadelai in January last.

Two months later, in March, Emin had received a summons from the Mandi to surrender, I penitentiary.

and had decided to march against him along the western bank of the Nile. At the same time a mysterious "White Pasha" was heard of on the Babr-en-Ghazel, at the head of a large force. When Stanley's followers were seen marching northward they were still robust, and they may well have formed the nucleus of a force recraited by Stapley from the Zandehs, who had previously supplied Emin with his best soldiers. The news that the "White Pasha" had a great battle with the Mahdi's forces and was victorious, has greatly encouraged all who cling to their faith that Stanley's good fortune has not deserted bim. Now comes information from Pers Lourdel, a Roman Catholic missionary stationed in Ugan-da, to the effect that in June last he had received news which indicated that Stanley had changed his original course; that a large force had been reported in the vicinity of the Wallemakua, and that this had led to the belief in Uganda that the explorer would attempt not only the rescue of Emin Pasha, but also the prisoners at Khar-

The reason that no news has recently been received from Stanley himself is obvious, from the fact that all reports state that the Arab slave-dealers are making a determined effort to establish a great Arab empire in central Africa, and have drawn a cordon of hostile chiefs across the country to the south of Wadelai. As a result, it is hardly possible for a messenger to get through with news. Hence there is no need for immediate anxiety for Mr. Stanley's safety. The difficulty still remains for him, however, of getting back again, but those who know Mr. Stanley best seem to have faith in his capacity to surmount all difficulties.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

Lord Tennyson and John Bright, and the Ailments from Which They Suffer, LONDON, Nov. 24.-Lord Tennyson was safely moved back to the Isle of Wight, on Wednesday. He was taken by a special train to Symington, and by steamer to Yarmouth, accompanied by Dr. Dobbs, and, although he is still very ill and prestrate, it is hoped the dangerous relapses are now at an ced. The idea of going south for the winter has evidently been abandoned, temporarily, at least, as impracticable. John Bright, another illustrious invalid, is considered past all hope. He grows weaker and weaker, although his congestion of the lungs does not extend. The old man has no power to rally, and the days of his thundering the evils of war have probably passed forever. But even now he is as hot-headed and obstinate as he used to be. He insists on having the newspapers every day, despite his doctors, and upon reading all that they say about his illness. If they declare him to be worse than he really is, he flies into a violent rage, and in order to keep him pacified, his physicians are obliged to make their bulletins as mild as possible. His family are all with him, as he may die at any Irish Capacity for Business.

London Cable Special. The Duke of Abercorn is convinced that the Irish have natural business capacity, and at the Arts Club, two nights ago, he told a story to prove it. In Tory island, off Donegal, there is no resident doctor, because the inhabitants are so healthy. The other day one had to be fetched from the mainland, and insisted with great cruelty opon receiving his one guinea fee before trusting himself to the islander's boat. When he had done his work and started for home he naturally required a boat, and was then informed by the thrifty islander that the fee to take him away from the island was two guiness, which he had to pay.

Relief for Emin Bey. BERLIN, Nov. 25 .- Fifty members of the Emin relief committee held a meeting in the lower house of the Landtag to-day. Dr. Peters presided. Herr Von Bennigsen made an ad dress, in which he pointed out that interests of the German nation were involved in the East Africa troubles, and that the proposed expedition would materially conduce to the restoration of German prestige. It was unanimously decided to send Lieut. Wissman, as soon as possible, to lead the first column. Dr. Peters will in the meantime prepare to equip a supporting chuma, of which he will have the command.

"Jack the Ripper's" Partner. London, Nov. 25 .- A private person near Nottingham has received a letter signed "Jack the Ripper's Pal," stating that the Whitechapel murders were committed by himself and the person calling himself "Jack the Ripper." Jack. the writer says, is a Bavarian whom he first met on board a ship while returning to England from America, and who exercised a mesmeric influence over him, leading him to join him in the murders. Steamship Agent Murdered.

COLONGE, Nov. 25 .- A trunk containing the corpse of Herr Huelsburg, forwarding agent of the English Packet Company, was found on the dock at Basken yesterday. The skull had been fractured and the victim's watch and $750, which he was known to have when last seen, were missing. A steward in the employ of the company, named Daw, was arrested here to-day on suspicion of having committed the crime.

Slavers Captured.

SUAKIM, Nov. 25 .- The British recently capt ured seven slave dhows after a severe fight, in which many persons were wounded. The boats were afterwards condemned to be sold as slavers. The Italian government claims possession of the dhows on the ground that they were captured in waters of Italy's jurisdiction. Three other ahows, with their crews and slaves, escaped during the fight.

Sixteen Persons Drowned.

Sample of the Methods by Which the Democrats Hope to Obtain Control.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.-The schemes by which the Democratic managers hope to organize and control the next House are best illustrated by the Maryland election case pending before the Governor of that State. In Baltimore the present Congressman, Rayner, was beaten by a Republican, Mr. Stockbridge. Rayner and the Democratic leaders now ask the Governor to issue the certificate of election to Rayner, because, in one precinct, that gave a large majority for Stockbridge, and by which he was elected, the election officers failed to sign the original returns, although they did sign the official copy of the returns. If the Governor should take advantage of this technicality and issue the certificate to Rayner, he would decide against precedents. Similar action as in Maryland is proposed to be taken in other Southern districts to manufacture a Democratic majority in the next House. The Republicans are determined that this plan shall not succeed. If the Democrats propose to benefit by technicalities the Republicans will insist that nothing shall be done not in strict accordance with the law. Now, the making out of the roll of the House and the calling it to order by the Clerk of the preceding House is not authorized by law, but simply by a rule of the House. But when this or any other House adjourns sine die, it dies, and with it the rules and the terms of all the officers of the House also. The rule continuing the officers of the Hourse until the next House is organized is in reality unlawful, but for convenience sake it has been permitted to stand and been submitted to. The Republicans have no desire to attack the authority of the Clerk of the House to hold over and call the next House to order, but they will surely do so if that Clerk assumes to play the part the Democratic leaders assign to him in the plot to steal the House. It is proposed that if the Governor of Maryland issue a certificate to Rayner, and if other Democratic Governors act similarly, the respective canvassers be compelled to issue certificates to the parties counted out, and that these certificates, as well as those of the Governors, be presented to the House. Then the authority of the Clerk of the House to decide which one of these conflicting certificates shall be recognized will be denied, and the outcome will probably be that the courts will hold neither of the contestants entitled to participate in the organization of the House, but that the contests must be settled by the House itself. after organization, as the Constitution provides. In that case the next House will not be

WHO WILL SUCCEED MR. CARLISLE? Many Candidates for the Speakership of the Next House.

Washington Special to New York Tribune. A Republican of long experience and national reputation yesterday said: "In the election of a Speaker of the next Congress the Republicans ought to be careful to choose a man with a firm will and who possesses the courage to execute it. By that I do not mean one who would try to oppress the minority or who might be governed by partisan bias. He should be fair, and just, and impartial, but firm, energetic and alert. If a man of weak will or infirm purpose shall be chosen it will be a misfortune to the country as well as to the party. It ought not to be forgotten that the baker's dozen of Southern men and their Northern allies, who have ruled the House for six years and compelled a pliant Speaker to do their bidding, either in person or through others, whether he was willing or not, will be the minority, ready and eager to annoy and obstruct the majority in every possible manner, and at every possible opportunity. As obstructionists the Democrats are skillful, and it is only when they try to carry out an affirmative policy that they are liable to disorganization under the leadership of the plausible Carlisle and of Mills, McMillin, the Breckinridges, Oates, Turner and their Northern lieutenants. The minority will be active and alert, and it will be animated mainly by the spirit of bulldozing. I repeat that the Republicans ought to be very careful in making choice of a Speaker." One already hears considerable gossip about the speakership. Indeed, the Democrats began to gossip about it before they confessed that the Republicans has elected a majority of the House. Some of them feared that Mr. Reed would be chosen, others inclined to the opinion that Major McKinley stood the better chance, It is generally believed that Mr. Reed will be the only New England candidate, that New York will present no candidate, that no Pennsylvania man will be likely to enter the lists. that Ohio may offer both McKinley and Butterworth, that Cannon, of Illinois, will be in the field, that Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, will make a contest for the place, and that Mr. Ryan, of Kansas, may enter the race. There will be plenty of time for other candidates to get themselves into racing trim, and several probably | may wish to take part in the procession, and will do so. Respecting Mr. Burrows's candidacy

the Star says: "Mr. Burrows has been casually mentioned now and then in connection with the speakership of the next House. It has not been generally known, however, that he is an active candidate for that office. A Star reporter was in-formed on Tusday that Mr. Burrows has been conducting a still-hunt for the place since early in the summer, and has got a long start on his rivals in the contest. He became satisfied when the tariff discussion opened up that the Republicans would have the House in the Fifty-first Congress, and began at once to get himself in trim for the speakership. He was strengthened in his ambition by the prominence he attained | York World, is in the city. in the tariff discussion, and the fact that his speech had a wider circulation as a campaign document than any other. SENATOR ALLISON.

The Tariff Will Be Revised in Case the Republicans Have the Power.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 .- A special to the Tribune, from Dubuque, Ia., says that Senator Allison was interviewed, to-day, as to the attitude of the Republican party on the tariff question. He said: "The Republican party favors the general revision plan proposed by the Senate substitute. If there is any probability that the House will agree to the main features of the substitute, or if there is a probability of final agreement during the session, then, no doubt the Senate will proceed at once to its consideration, and pass it to completion as rapidly as

In reply to the question whether the Senate bill would be passed, he said: "This no one knows. The principles upon which it is to be constructed being agreed on, the details become a matter of adjustment and compromise. No tariff bill can pass the House during a short session that does not meet the approval of its recognized leaders. A minority of Democrats might favor the Senate bill, which, with the Republicans, would constitute a majority of the House, yet without the consent of the Speaker, the majority of the ways and means committee, and the majority of the party in power in the House, they could not get the question before the House. If the Republicans have a majority in the next House, which seems probable, they will pass a bill in the next Congress, if none is passed this winter. Republicans recognize the necessity for a reduction in the revenue, and also the necessity for a tariff revision. If they have both houses the tariff will be revised and the revenue reduced practically upon the general plan proposed in the Senate substitute."

Postmaster Frank Brown, of Baltimore, has been in the city for two days, placing before the Postoffice Department an apparently innocent plan to expedite the mail service in this city. Mr. Brown claims his plan originated with him, and that it is intended solely for improvement of the service. He proposes that the government shall place mail boxes on the horse-cars which run in the neighborhood of the postoffice. The box, according to his plan, will be placed on the back of the car. Collectors, stationed at a convenient point, will empty each box, the car standing long enough for that purpose. Then the merry mule-carriage will proceed on its course, returning along with a mail-box fresh laden. Upon investigation this scheme, which originated with Mr. Brown, is found to have greater significance than would at first appear. The question was quietly discussed at the convention of street-car men recently held in this city. Brown's system was then approved, and it has their sanction now. If mail-boxes are placed on the cars, the street-ear companies become mail carriers. To interfere with the transportation of the mails is an offense against the government of the United States. If Mr. Brown's plan should be adopted, and in any of the great tie-ups which have become frequent in New York, Chicago and St. Louis, the strikers and their friends should interfere with the operation of the street-car line, the aid of the federal government might be invoked, and deputy marshals ordered out to aid the company in its controversy with the em-

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 .- Congressman-elect Jason B. Brown is in the city, getting pointers as to his duties after March 4, next. He anticipates an extra session of the Fifty-first Congress, early next spring, for tariff revision. John Kennedy, formerly a well-known printer of Indianapolis, now a compositor on the New Hon. John W. Foster and Miss Eleanor Foster, who left, Oct. 31, for Mexico, are expected to arrive to-morrow, by steamer, in New York, after a pleasant stay in Mexico. Their return was made by way of Vera Cruz. Ex-Secretary Thompson, with his son Harry Thompson, has been making a short stay in New York, and will arrive in a few days, for a brief visit to Judge Jeremiah Wilson.

Mrs. Geo. B. Williams, formerly of Lafayette, has left the city for New York, from where she will accompany friends to California.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Halford, late of Indianapolis, have taken a residence here on P street, near Seventeenth, for the season. Mrs. Scott Lord, sister of Mrs. Harrison, has returned to the city and is visiting the family of Maj. R. C. Parker, U. S. army, at 174 M street. The Herald has these paragraphs: "Major McKinley's friends say that he will not be Speaker of the House. Already prominent Ohio politicians are putting him forward as Ohio's choice for the new Cabinet. In view of the slim Republican majority, if any, in the next House, it is thought that no Cabinet
